Never Take A Knife To a Gun Fight — Take Them Both!

Thinking out of the box leads to interesting conceptions. Such was the case when Aaron Moore, VP of Laserlyte was thinking about the old cliché — “Never take a knife to a gun-fight.”

“Why not take both,” thought Aaron. Since Laserlyte is a state-of-the-art manufacturer of laser gun sighting products, adding this product line was a no-brainer.

In the gun field there’s two groups: 1) The purest, who seldom smiles and must approach all facets from a straight tactical purpose. 2) The regular guy, who can maintain a sense of humor that doesn’t interfere with their tactical approach.

While the purests were questioning the practical purpose for these bayonets, production was straining to keep up with the demand. It seemed everyone wanted one, if for no other reason than to add some levity to the serious world in which we live.

Laserlyte had just added a laser sight to the North American Arms 22lr and 22mag miniature revolvers, so why not add a bayonet to this precision little jewel of a firearm? Above you see one with both products added.

Featuring a Kabar blade, Laserlyte’s quality is carried through on their pistol-bayonet product line.
